To Be Hold Oct. 6-7

Sept. 24, 2007

ORONO, Maine -- The University of Maine baseball team will hold a Fall Baseball Clinic on Oct. 6-7, 2007 at the UMaine Baseball Complex and Mahaney Dome. The team will also host a Baseball Elite Prospect Camp Oct. 7, 2007.

Head Coach Steve Trimper is excited to offer the 2nd annual University of Maine Fall Baseball Clinic. The Fall Baseball Clinic is divided into two parts, covering offensive and defensive strategies and skills. The offensive portion of the clinic will focus on all facets of the offensive side of baseball including utilizing the state-of-the-art PROBATTER hitting simulator, which has become a premier hitting tool for almost every Major League Baseball team.

The second portion being offered as part of the Fall Baseball Clinic is defense oriented, offering athletes the opportunity to receive position-specific instruction from members of the UMaine coaching staff, as well as current players. With 15 years of coaching experience, teaching background and successful camps and clinics, Coach Trimper and his staff are proud to offer this opportunity to athletes who are interested in practicing the fundamentals of the game of baseball.

The clinic will be Oct. 6-7, 2007 and will run from 9-12. The cost of the clinic is $75. For additional information, please contact Mark Michaud (581-1098) or mark.j.michaud@umit.maine.edu.

Maine will also hold an Elite Prospect Camp on Sunday, Oct. 7, 2007 at 9 a.m. The ages for the camp are 15-18. The cost of the Elite Prospect Camp is $85.

This camp is designed for the serious college/professional baseball prospect. The thrust of this session will be perfecting the fundamentals of the game while simultaneously exposing players to The University of Maine and other college coaches that will be in attendance.
